Nifty Spot Chart

Technical Outlook

Indian equity markets continued its gains for the second straight session and Nifty Index rose near by a percent and settled at 14919. On the sectoral front, Auto, IT, FMCG and Pharm stocks outperformed during the day. Technically, the Nifty index which took supports near the immediate swing high support 14750 in the early hours was hovering just above it for the most of the day and in the late hour's bulls picked up the momentum and ended the day almost near the day high. As previously mentioned, Index is trading within the diagonal trend lines and as per that upper band resistance is placed at 15030, surpass above that would once again resume its primary bull trend else, we might see index turning down from those levels. SGX Nifty is indicating a flat opening of domestic markets and as mentioned above 15030 would act as key resistance and supports are placed at 14750 levels for the day.

Bank Nifty Spot Chart

Technical Outlook

Despite positive momentum in broader markets, Banking stock failed to show optimism and therefore, Nifty Bank Index continued to quote in sideways range and finally ended the day at 35419 with minimal gains. Nifty Index is trading in lower top lower bottom structure in the short and currently it is just holding above the immediate supports of 34950, slip below that may pull down the Index till 34000 then 33750 levels. While on the higher side resistance are seen at 35920 then 36500 levels. The momentum indicator RSI (14) remained flattish at 53 mark and stochastic oscillator continued to remain on negative side which indicates weak trend. Overall, we anticipate Nifty Bank may remained sideways to bearish and may see selling pressure building up on rise.
