

Daily Commodity Trend

3 Sept 2026

MCX Gold (1,52,402): Witness a breather.

MCX Gold ended positive yesterday, breaking its six-session losing streak and closing near the day's high. However, the daily momentum and trend remain weak, suggesting the current recovery could be a relief rally. The 10 and 20 DEMA lines are likely to act as immediate supply zones.

For the day, the outlook remains negative, with support at 153,650-153,300 and resistance at 154,800. The outlook will require a review on sustained strength above 155,000, while weakness below support can resume the downtrend.

MCX Silver (2,36,266): Daily momentum negative.

MCX Silver ended positive in yesterday's session and formed a bullish candlestick. The price is witnessing support near the Supertrend support line; however, daily momentum remains weak. The commodity has witnessed a trendline breakdown and has also slipped below the 20 DEMA, while rallies in the last few sessions have faced consistent selling pressure at higher levels.

For the day, the outlook remains negative, with support at 231800-227900 and resistance at 241800. The negative momentum and selling pressure at higher levels are expected to continue. The outlook will require a review on sustained strength above 243600.

MCX Crude Oil (8,601): Breakout on the charts.

MCX Crude Oil maintained its positive momentum for the sixth consecutive session and formed an indecisive candlestick, indicating equilibrium between buyers and sellers. The commodity has recently witnessed a breakout on the daily chart, which can invite fresh buying. Daily momentum remains positive, although elevated volatility warrants disciplined risk management.

For the day, the outlook remains positive, with support at 8400-8200 and resistance at 8950-9050. Sustained buying above the breakout zone can extend the upward momentum towards higher levels. The outlook will require a review on sustained weakness below 8140.
