Nifty Spot Chart

Technical Outlook

On Thursday, Nifty Index started the day on positive note and soon it managed to cross the crucial resistance of 14900 and jumped till 14984 levels. Thereafter, it quoted in sideways range and in the final hour it experienced some profit booking and finally settled at 14873 mark. Index has once again failed to sustain above the key level of 14900 and formed a Doji candle stick. Hence going forward, it would be vital for the markets to hold above sustain above 14900 to continue further up move. On the downside supports are now placed at 14600 then 14460 levels. The RSI (14) has moved up till immediate swing high of 52 mark and stochastic oscillator has entered overbought level of 80 mark. SGX Nifty is indicating a flattish to weak opening of domestic markets. Thus looking at overall factors, market seems to consolidate in sideways range with negative bias.

Bank Nifty Spot Chart

Technical Outlook

Despite positive momentum in the broader markets, Bank Nifty remain lower on Thursday and ended the session almost near the day's low at 32782 mark with 0.63% loss. Index has failed to cross the immediate trend line resistance and turned lower from that and tumbled till the immediate supports of 32600 levels. Ahead, trade below 32600 could provide further selloff till 32100 then 31800 levels. But the momentum indicators stochastic oscillator and RSI (14) both have witnessed descent correction and currently hovering near the oversold zone levels. Hence, going forward surpass above trend line resistance of 33500 could turn the index to positive, else it will continue to remain downward.
